MRS. EMMA JANE DALTON

For taking care of the thousands of details concerning our everyday life as a unified class; for taking our part whenever an emergency arises; for giving us an extra boost when we need it most, and for holding the stepladder used by us to light the flame in our lamp, we thank you, Mrs. Dalton.

SCHOOL COUNCIL

"Imagine Emma Willard as a ship sailing among the waves of everyday life. In order to make any vessel run smoothly the officers and crew must all work together with willing spirits."

School Council, as helmsman, endeavored to steer our ship, batten down the hatches during stormy seas, and hoist more sail as quiet waters were regained. Among these sails were Vanity Fair, Saturday excursions to Vanderheyden, and arranging for each class to obtain satisfactory radio-phonograph facilities.

An addition to School Council was the House Co-ordinator, an aid to Sage and Kellas councils, which, with Slocum, kept the crew in line. All performed routine tasks were under Work Council's supervision. Campus Players, A.A., and the publications enlisted diverse talents for our mutual enjoyment. U.N.E.W., through communications work, indicated our role in world affairs. Chapel Circle, too, encouraged each to find her place in the sea of life.

Our ship sails onward, officers and crew more able after experience in commanding her; leaving her, we hope, even more shipshape than before.

THE FRESHMEN

During our first year at E.W. we Freshmen have had many rewarding experiences. Of course, our first few weeks spent away from home were very new and different, but as we settled down into the daily routine, we really began to feel that we were a part of school life.

Our class officers this year have been Gretchen Smith, Louisa Mattoon, and Sammy Morton, Presidents; Natalie Hubbard, Sally Harris, and Margaret Gray, Vice-Presidents; Danny Palmer, Pat Overly, and Sheila Carter, Secretary-Treasurers.

In sports, the Freshmen learned rules and techniques, as well as good sportsmanship. We all remember Fall Field Day for our victory over the Sophomores in soccer and for the combined victory of the Purples. Winter Field Day also stands out for us because of our "once in a lifetime" basketball win against the Sophomores.

Our dorm, third floor Kellas, echoed with such calls as "Does anyone have some food? I'm starved!" Perhaps our biggest thrill came on the day our beautiful radio-phonograph arrived.

During the year we produced four one-act plays. Every Freshman took a part in their production.

Altogether, our Freshman year at Emma Willard will always be remembered by us as one in which we made new friends, gained new knowledge, and learned to appreciate fully the experience of community living.

THE SOPHOMORES

Our class started the year with sixty-seven Sophomores, whose native habitat was anywhere in the vicinity of Hyphen house, and even on a corridor of Sage.

After our cherished phonograph was installed, we settled around it. The "mood-making" music accomplished its purpose by giving both us and the dorm a misty atmosphere. We came to the definite conclusion that the average Sophomore doesn't enjoy bagpipes.

Despite an occasional ringing alarm clock or the overwhelming scent of perfume, our nocturnal study halls were peaceful.

We lived academically through the decline of the Roman Empire, fought in the Crusades, and finally experienced the glory of the Renaissance.

Our "Monster Rally" at the Fair was the ultimate in white elephants. We showed our dramatic talents in "Her Majesty the King" and "A Mighty Fortress," which we shared with the Juniors. The ancient arts of bell ringing, stained-glass window design, and ballad writing were not dead in our class. Some of us also took part in demonstrations of water-ballet and rhythms. What's more, we did our darndest for the Emerald team.

As the school year draws to a close, we have a final chuckle at "sophomoric humor" before we leave, fully correlated, and, we hope, fully prepared to become Juniors.

Although being one hundred strong presented some difficulties at first, we Juniors have done much this year to prove the truth of the adage that there is strength in numbers. With the cooperation of each girl and the assistance of our advisors, the class was soon functioning as a team. The Very Important Purples realized just how important their leadership really was. The Purple team continued on its rampage, upsetting the Greens in a thrilling Fall Field Day. Our long-awaited Prom next claimed our attention. Finally, however, the last invitation had been answered, but all too quickly the strains of Ralph Stuart's orchestra left E.W. A crowded term concluded with a Christmas party for our sister class.

Our strength sustained us through exams, field trips, conferences, and television appearances, to mention only a few of our winter activities, in which our talents were made evident in "Showboat" and the popular French auction. Providing the bulwark for "A Mighty Fortress," we rounded out our winter program.

Spring term brought us renewed energy, which carried us through concerts, May Day, and Spring Field Day. We are eagerly anticipating the challenge of Senior year, and hope that it will prove to be as happy an experience as Junior year has been.

Senior Song

The love and knowledge we have gained,
Our friendships far and near;
The hard-earned goals that we have won,
The valued past that has been such fun,
These mem'ries we hold dear.

Although we may in coming years
Embark on something new,
The lamp of truth and mem'ries gay
Are yours, E.W.

The past few years have opened up
A knowledge-widened door.
And in the hearts of us who learn,
An ever-kindled flame will burn,
For Nineteen Fifty Four.

THE LIGHT

A small class, it's true, but there's no denying that the FRESHMAN class that arrived in the Fall of 1950 was rather dynamic. We will never forget our first Troy leave, when the whole class took off—en masse. Neither will Troy forget it. Then the hurricane over Thanksgiving weekend resulted in the transformation of our beloved Hyphen House into a male dormitory for the Juniors' stranded dates. Next our hidden talents emerged with the production of four one-act plays. And the field trip to New York City proved quite enlightening for all concerned, even though that fascinating trick shop was not supposed to be included in the tour.

Castles, castles, and more castles. . . . As we SOPHOMORES plowed through Medieval History, we realized that there was more to school than just mischief-making. Pet rats and mice over in Weaver Hall absorbed a good deal of our time. In fact, since we could not bear to depart from them at vacation time, many E.W. Sophomores were seen carrying an odd assortment of tiny animals home. Our more undesirable talents were revealed on Hallowe'en, when we discovered that eggs and studying don't mix too well. Never will the Class of '54 forget that wonderful creation, the Nausea, which turned out to be the rage of the annual E.W. Fair.

.....of OUR PAST

Our class doubled JUNIOR year, as did our numerous responsibilities as leaders of the Green team and our proprietary feelings concerning Kellas. The Junior Prom brought to its end an eventful Fall term. Then before we knew it, we found ourselves immersed in the vocational testing program, surveys, and College Boards of the S.A.T. variety. Our creative minds produced a fantastic land "Behind the Iron Curtain" as the main feature of the Fair. Spring elections came and went, as we participated in Flame Ceremony, the approaching seniority was felt by all.

With mingled emotions, ninety-four enthusiastic SENIORS received the cherished rings at a dinner given in their honor in October. The traditional production of Christmas Revels climaxed the Fall Term. What a thrill it was to be guests at the Manor House! Soon Winter term, the Fair, and College Boards were a part of our past. Leisure time seemed nonexistent as the deadline for our source themes crept closer and closer. While preparing for the Senior Prom, the fact that we'd soon be alumnae became more believable. Our senior play and Class Day, both huge successes in our eyes, brought us two steps closer to that big day. On Saturday June 12, we left Sage Hall for the last time as seniors to receive our coveted diplomas. As last goodbyes were made, the past four years became a part of our most treasured memories.

CLASS POEM

BROADCASTS REAPED

Steps taken—thresholds passed
All minds upon the future bent
Each day briefer than the last
Each year's thoughts well spent.
Growing with hopes, we ninety-four
Search the broader road,
Journeymen of fifty-four
Reaping harvests sowed.

Compelled as to common goal,
Enjoying breathless time,
Each creating every role—
Leader, chorus, mime.
The earnings of the moment end,
We share our greedy store
And profit by the dividend,
The student—and the lore.

“JAHN & OLLIER AGAIN”

A slogan signifying a service created to excel in all things pertaining to yearbook design and engraving.

We have found real satisfaction in pleasing you, the yearbook publisher, as well as your photographer and your printer.

JAHN & OLLIER ENGRAVING CO.

817 W. WASHINGTON BLVD., CHICAGO 7, ILL.

Congratulations

Graduates - - -

We here at Keystone are proud of the fact that we had a part in producing your yearbook.

For a great many years we have been privileged to work with schools throughout the country in the rewarding task of compiling class histories.

The school annual, which captures within its pages so many happy school day memories, is one of the most cherished products of the printing industry.
